QUESTION 1: What is the main purpose of the passage?

The passage discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of a company's financial performance. It emphasizes the need for transparency and accountability, particularly in the context of public companies. The author argues that proper record-keeping is essential for investors to make informed decisions and for the company to maintain its reputation.

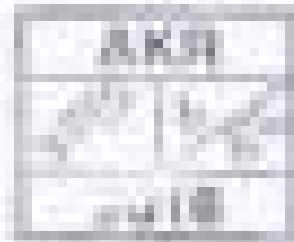

Which of the following best describes the main purpose of the passage?

- (A) To inform the reader about the importance of financial record-keeping.
- (B) To persuade the reader that financial record-keeping is essential for public companies.
- (C) To provide a detailed analysis of the challenges of financial record-keeping.
- (D) To compare different methods of financial record-keeping.
- (E) To discuss the legal requirements for financial record-keeping.

Answer: (B) To persuade the reader that financial record-keeping is essential for public companies.

Explanation: The passage focuses on the importance of financial record-keeping for public companies, specifically highlighting the need for transparency and accountability. The author's tone is persuasive, aiming to convince the reader of the necessity of proper record-keeping practices.

Figure 1 consists of two line graphs, (a) and (b), showing the percentage of respondents for different levels of agreement with the statement "The government should do more to help people who are struggling financially".

Graph (a) shows the percentage of respondents for different levels of agreement (Strongly agree, Agree, Disagree, Strongly disagree) across four categories: Total, White, Black, and Hispanic. The Y-axis represents the percentage of respondents (0 to 100). The X-axis represents the level of agreement. The legend indicates: Total (solid line), White (dashed line), Black (dotted line), and Hispanic (dash-dot line).

Graph (b) shows the percentage of respondents for different levels of agreement (Strongly agree, Agree, Disagree, Strongly disagree) across four categories: Total, White, Black, and Hispanic. The Y-axis represents the percentage of respondents (0 to 100). The X-axis represents the level of agreement. There are many other things that people do to help the environment. For example, some people use reusable water bottles instead of plastic ones. Others use public transportation or carpool to reduce the number of cars on the road. Some people even grow their own vegetables and fruits to reduce the need for food that has been transported long distances. These are all ways that people can help the environment and make a difference.

Views of respondents by sex and by education were also examined. However, because of the small number of respondents, no significant differences were found. The results of the regression analysis are presented in Table 3. Respondents with a graduate or postgraduate education had a 1.46 times greater probability of reporting a positive attitude toward the use of genetic engineering than those with a high school education.
